HOWARD CITY — Presentations involving live animals are always the most popular part of the Summer Reading Program hosted by the Timothy C. Hauenstein Reynolds Township Library.

Thursday morning’s program presented by employees of John Ball Zoo was no different, with an estimated 150 children and adults in attendance to learn about an African tortoise, a giant African millipede, an American toad and an Everglades ratsnake (with some brave kids daring to pet the snake).

There was a noticeable difference in the room this summer: Instead of being packed like sardines in standing room only, attenees reveled in a new, more spacious area.

That’s because the library has a new program center across town, a former church building at 121 S. Lincoln St. in Howard City.

“This is great,” said excited Library Youth Director Autumn Wood as she handed out stickers to children coming into the building. "In our other room at the library, we used to be just squished in there with people having to go out and stand in the hallway. In here, everyone can spread out and be comfortable."

The new program center has a fresh coat of brick red color on the exterior and is currently undergoing renovations inside in preparation of the facility's grand opening at 10 a.m. on July 26. Community members are invited to attend the ribbon-cutting ceremony and tour the repurposed building.

"This new facility represents an exciting chapter in the library's ongoing commitment to providing expanded educational, cultural and community programming for residents of all ages," Library Director Cheryl Smith said. "The Program Center will serve as a hub for library events, workshops, youth and teen activities and community meetings. We are thrilled to open the doors to our new Program Center. This space will allow us to better serve the growing needs of our community and offer more diverse and engaging programming throughout the year."

The program center's grand opening on July 26 takes place the same day as the library's fourth annual Food Truck Rally and Craft Show, which will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Ensley Park, 518 E. Shaw St. The Friends of the Library group will also hold a book sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. that day at the new program center.

The fourth annual Howard City Car Show sponsored by Frontline Towing & Recovery and Mooney's Autobody Experts of Howard City will also take place from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. on July 26 on Shaw Street, featuring tuner class judging, top 40 awards, best in show, cash and prize giveaways and more, with all proceeds benefiting the library.

For more information about the car show, call Frontline at (989) 287-2278.
